PROOFREADING MARKS – Teacher’s Guide

INTRODUCTION:
Welcome to Ten-Minute Grammar! The goal of these units is to help students build a solid understanding of grade-level grammar concepts during the first ten minutes of the class period each day. Each unit goes through a progression in which new grammatical concepts are introduced (by discovery, as much as possible), built upon, and then practiced and reviewed. In addition, the concepts in each consecutive unit build on one another logically—it might seem silly to spend time reviewing nouns and verbs with 8th graders, but it’s necessary if they’re going to understand things like gerunds and infinitives or specific types of verb phrases.

The unit includes a week and a half of daily bell ringer activities, a quiz, and one or more additional practice worksheets.

SUGGESTED TIMELINE:
• Start the Day One bell ringer on a Monday.
• By Friday, if you feel the class is ready for it, give the unit quiz.
  o If you feel like the entire class needs additional practice to master the concept (or, let’s be honest, if the next week is a short one and you don’t have time to start a new unit but need bell ringers for a few extra days), there are three additional days’ worth of bell ringers.
• After the quiz, a student who clearly failed to grasp one of the week’s concepts could be assigned one of the practice worksheets. After completing the worksheet, the student could retake the unit quiz for an improved grade.
  o The worksheets can also be used during the week as extra practice for the entire class.

UNIT OBJECTIVES:
1. Students should understand that…
   a. “Editing,” “Proofreading,” and “Copyediting” are synonyms that mean checking for and correcting grammatical errors in a piece of writing.
   b. The use of standard proofreading marks helps avoid confusion when you’re editing your own work or someone else’s.
2. Students should be able to…
   a. Use the proper proofreading mark to indicate an error in a text.
   b. Make the appropriate corrections to a text based on someone else’s proofreading marks.

KEYS TO THE UNIT:
The main focus of this unit is not necessarily learning to find errors in text—after all, that requires understanding of specific grammar rules that are beyond the scope of this one- to two-week unit (but that will receive more attention throughout the school year.) The focus here is simply learning to consistently use correct proofreading marks so that teacher and students are on the same page when editing student writing or reading someone else’s editing.
The Proofreading Marks poster at the end of the unit could be copied onto cardstock for each student and stored in his or her English binder. You could also enlarge them and make classroom posters.

DAILY ROUTINE:
Have the day’s bell ringer activity up on a projector when the students come to class each day. I have my students do the assignment on quarter sheets of paper (I cut them up and have a stack available each day). Some days in each unit require copyediting; since it takes too long for students to copy the incorrect sentences and then edit them, a page of quarter-size student answer sheets are provided for those days (see the pages after the last bell ringer.)

Students should spend the first five minutes working silently (you should use that time to take roll and then circulate around the room to keep kids on task.) After the five minutes of work time, spend the next five minutes going over the answers. Don’t give them the answers (except as a last resort); you want the students to volunteer their answers. Use the correction session each day to explain new concepts, clarify ideas, and correct misconceptions. If a student volunteers an incorrect answer, find someone else who can give the correct answer. Help the class understand the concept a little better and then ask the first student a question like, “Explain to the class why your first answer was wrong.” I’ve never had a student feel offended by this—if anything, it gives kids a chance to redeem themselves after what might have been an embarrassing moment of being wrong in front of everyone.

If you use an overhead projector, a Smart Board, or project onto a white marker board, you can choose a student each day to come to the front and write answers or corrections as other students volunteer them.

In my class, students get full credit as long as they come up with an answer for every question, even if some answers are incorrect. At the very least, for the first few days while new concepts are introduced, students should be allowed to change their answers during the correction session—but only if they already have an answer of their own. What we want is for them to try to figure out the answer. If they get it wrong, they’ll learn when you set them straight in the correction session. But they learn nothing if they just write down answers as you dictate them!

The Wordplay at the end of each day’s questions can be a way to earn extra credit if you choose. As incentive to work quickly, I tell my students they can’t begin on the Wordplay until they’re finished with the other questions, and I always offer a piece of candy to the first student to get the answer right or the student with the best answer or most answers. (You’d be surprised what junior-high students will do for a Starburst or a Jolly Rancher!)

LITERATURE:
This unit contains example selections from the novel Stargirl by Jerry Spinelli.
For each line below, rewrite the words with the correction indicated by the proofreading mark:

1. five monkeyes
2. Statue of liberty
3. red bicycle
4. Climb the hill” I said.
5. Don’t fire me; I beg you!
6. It was you! Yes. But why?
7. I gave her flowers
9. Give me the gun!
10. I want some cake.
11. Ring the door bell
12. Frank Washington

CATALOGUE CREATOR: The root word “-luc- / -lus- / -lum-” means “light” and sounds like “loose” or “loom.” How many words can you list that contain this root?

CORRECTION SESSION: Use the time today to help students remember the different proofreading marks. Some of these marks should be obvious to everyone. But others, like the ones in numbers 9, 10, and 11, might be more unfamiliar.
The flying monkeys left witch’s castle, and took to the air to find their prey. They didn’t have to go far. Dorothy and her friends were hanging out in a fortress right next to the castle. “I saw her first!” one of the monkeys yelled. “The extra bananas are mine!”

For each line below, make the correction indicated by the proofreading mark:

1. We like to eat pickles.
2. My computer is broken.
3. Hand me that screwdriver.
4. Did you take my wallet?

1. pickles
2. computer
3. me that
4. delete the second “take my”

Wordplay – Just for fun!

- EIGHT LETTERS: Create as many words as you can using three or more of the letters below (at least one eight-letter word is possible):

  D N A I R C L A

  Cardinal
In your own words...

1. Why would it be important for a professional writer and his or her editor to be familiar with the same proofreading marks?

   1. POSSIBLE ANSWER: So they can efficiently communicate about errors without the editor having to explain the errors to the writer.

For each number below, decide whether the proofreading mark is being used correctly (answer each with a YES or a NO):

2. You never forget how ride a bike.  YES

3. I’m from Des moines.  NO

4. She asked, What’s your name?”  YES

5. Hand me the ramowt control.  NO

6. Cheaters never win.  YES

7. “Shut your face!” he yelled.  YES

➢ DESCRAMBLER: Try to sort out the five scrambled words below:

   BMTO   SOPKO   RMALNO   OFTOIGB   TICFATAR

   Tomb   Spook   Normal   Bigfoot   Artifact
Read the following excerpt from Stargirl by Jerry Spinelli. Mark the necessary corrections using the proper editing marks (there is one error in each line):

Afterward, the mourners were invited to Anna’s house for lunch. About thirty came. There was a buffet of cold cuts and salads and cookies. Stargirl was there, chatting with members of the family but not eating or drinking anything.

Suddenly, Anna heard her mother’s voice. It was louder than the others, but it was different: “what are you doing here?”

- FOUR-LETTER WORDS: Take the four-letter word below and change one letter to make a new four-letter word (keep it clean!) Then take that word and change one letter to make a new word. Then take that word and... You get the picture.
REVIEW FOR TODAY’S QUIZ:

Make sure you know the proper proofreading mark for each of the following errors:

1. Spelling errors
2. Capitalizing a letter or making it lowercase
3. Inserting or replacing a word
4. Inserting a period, comma, exclamation point, question mark, apostrophe, quotation marks, colon, or semi-colon
5. Putting a space between two words that are too close
6. Closing up a gap between two words that should be one
7. Starting a new paragraph
8. Transposing two words (reversing their places)
9. Deleting a letter or word
For each line below, make the correction indicated by the proofreading mark:

1. I like stories by Edgar Allan Potter.
   - Change “Potter” to “Poe”
2. You broke my pocket knife!
   - broke my
3. It’s not my fault.
4. Look on the bookshelf.
   - Bookshelf
5. My camera takes pictures in 3D.
   - Camera
6. Suddenly, his head fell off.
7. That movie had a great middle, beginning, and end.
8. Be quiet! he hissed.
   - “Be quiet!”
9. Are you scared? I’m terrified!
   - terrified
10. Meet me at Jefferson library tonight.
    - Library

- VOWEL COMBINATOR: The vowel combination “ei” can sound like the hard “A” in “play” or like the hard “E” in “beach.” List as many words as you can that contain this vowel combo.
Kevin was right. It was unthinkable that Stargirl could survive—or at least survive unchanged—among us. But it was also clear that Hillari Kimble was at least half right; this person calling herself Stargirl may or may not have been a faculty plant for school spirit, or not have been a faculty plant for school spirit, but whatever she was, she was not real.

She couldn’t be.

FIXER-ROOTER: How many words can you think of that have the same prefix, suffix, or root as the multisyllabic word below?

VIVISECTION

(the dissection of a living animal)
For each number below, decide whether the proofreading mark is being used correctly (answer each with a YES or a NO):

1. What are you doing here?   NO
2. Don’t tell me you lost your left arm, too. That’s crazy!   YES
   Put a comma here
3. First of all I don’t even own a car.   NO
4. I’m gonna get you!   YES
5. I grew up in houston, Texas.   YES
6. Could I borrow keys your?   NO
7. I want pepperowny on my pizza.   NO
8. Pass the chips and Dip.   NO
9. I’m too tired to think today.   YES
10. Sometimes I sleep well/last night I didn’t.   NO

ANAGRAM: Rearrange the letters in the nonsense phrase below to create new words that actually make sense.

STRAT TION DEFENSES UP THE TIDE
(Hint: highest elected official)
President of the United States
For each line below, re-write the sentence with the correction indicated by the proofreading mark:

1. She lives in Atlanta, Georgia.

2. I have a gold balloon.

3. “Leave me alone,” I said.

4. I like to eat pizza.

5. I knew you would come.

6. Where is my backpack?

7. Give me a high five.

8. “Hello,” I said.
   “Goodbye,” she replied.

For each sentence below, mark the error using the proper editing mark (the words in parentheses tell you what to look for):

9. (missing period) Author Jerry Spinelli was born in 1941.
10. At age sixteen, Jerry wrote a poem about a local football victory.

11. The poem was published in a Local newspaper.

12. It was then that Jerry decided he wanted to become a professional writer.

13. Would you be surprised to know that Jerry Spinelli’s first four books didn’t get published?

14. His fifth book was about a thirteen-year-old boy, and that’s how he got started writing for children and young adults.

15. Jerry Spinelli is best known for the following books: Maniac Magee, Wringer, and Stargirl.

16. Spinelli is now an award-winning author.

17. He won the Newbery Medal for Maniac Magee.
Read the following excerpts from Stargirl by Jerry Spinelli. Mark the necessary corrections using the proper proofreading marks (there are two errors in each line).

It was the worst slaughter of the year. Red was helpless. By the start of the fourth quarter we were ahead, 78 to 29. The coach put in the subs. We booed. We smelt a hundred points. We wanted blood. The coach put the starters back in. As we howled and thundered the stands, Stargirl got up and walked from the Gym. Those of us who noticed assumed she was going the rest room. I kept glancing toward the exit she never returned. With five seconds left in the game, the electrons scored the hundredth point. We went nuts.

We sat legs crossed. Cinammon scampered down my arm and onto the ground.

Stargirl shrieked, “stop!” She scooped up the rat and put him in her bag. “Owls hawks, snakes. He be a tasty meal.

“So” I said, “when does the enchantment start?”

We were sitting side by side, facing the moutains.

“It started when the earth was born.” Her eyes were closed. Her face was golden in the setting sun. “It never stops. It is, always. It’s just here.”

“So what do we do?”

She smiled. “That’s the secret.” Her eyes were closed. Her face was golden in the setting sun. “We do nothing. Or close as to nothing as we can.”
Write your own example sentences that contain one error each. Then go back and fix the error using the proper proofreading mark.

(It’s tough to come up with random sentences off the top of your head, so we’ll give you a subject: Giant mutant slugs and the havoc they cause in a small farm town—or any other random topic you can think up.)

ANSWERS WILL VARY.

Make an example sentence with...

1. a spelling error

2. a capitalization error

3. missing quotation marks

4. a missing word

5. no end punctuation

6. a missing space between two words

7. two words that need to be transposed (switched places)

8. an extra unnecessary word

9. an unnecessary space

10. a missing comma
